MR. CLEVELAND, MR. STEVENSON, AND MRS. CLEFELAND, TOO.

THEY GET PHOTOGRAPHED.

The Condidates "Taken" Separately and Together-Fifteen Negatives of J Cleveland Soes to Greenwich by Yacht, A cab drove up to the door of William C. Whitney's house, 2 West Fifty-seventh street, at half past ten o'clock yesterday morning and Adlai E. Stevenson, emerging from it, ran up the steps and was admitted to the house. John D. Crimmins called and spent half an hour with the Democratic candidates.

The merning's programme for Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Stevenson consisted of a course of photography. Accompanied by R. L. O'Brien, Mr. Cleveland's private secretary, they left the Whitney house in a closed carriage at 11 o'clock, and drove to Rockwood's photograph gallery, where they spent half an hour in contemplating a camera, I had almost as soon go to a dentist's," said Mr. Cleveland.

'Ch. we give anaesthetics now, too," replied Mr. Rockwood. "I have noticed." he went on. "that all of your pictures show the right side of your face. Now, I have also noticed that in public men the strongest expression is to be found in the left side. The one remarkable exception to this rule was Henry Ward Beecher. I propose to take the left side of your face, so as to prove to you that you are a two-sided man.

All this while the operator was taking span shots. In all fifteen negatives were taken. and then it was Candidate Stevenson's turn.
"Mr. Stevenson's face," the photographer said afterward, "is severe in repose. Stevenson needs drawing out to get the best expression. But once get him aroused and nterested, and you get the expression de-

Mr. Stevenson had the negatives taken, and then the candidates went to Fredricks's, at 770 Broadway. Mr. Fredricks took four negatives of Mr. Cleveland, and was then atives of Mr. Cleveland, and was then ready for Mr. Stevenson. While Mr. Stevenson was being photographed Mr. Cleveland waited in the gallery outside. From Fredricks's the two candidates drove to Sarony's, in Union square. Mr. Stevenson had had several likenesses taken there the day before. Sarony took the two in a group, sitting side by side, and took many separate pictures of Mr. Cleveland. Then the candidates drove to Falk's. 15 West Twenty-fourth street, where they separated, Mr. Stevenson going to the Hoffman House and Mr. Cleveland going into the gallery. He had several like newses taken there. To be photographed in, Mr. Cleveland wore a husiness suit, a cutaway of dark gray, and a polka dot lawn tie: Mr. Stevenson a frock coat of black diagonal, a black tle, and a diamond shirt pin.

Mrs. Cleveland was photographed on Thursday at Sarony's. She had difteen negatives taken in sizes varying from the importal cabinet to life-size photographs of the head and others while she wore a pink evening dress. Mrs. Cleveland wore no jewelry whatever except a heart-shaped ornament which served to fasten the pink evening dress at the throat.

Mrs. Cleveland had been photographed six months before, but would not allow the photographs to be put on sale.

After being photographed yesterday Mr. Cleveland went down town to the Mills building, where his law office is, and where Don M. Diekinson. E. C. Benedict, William R. Grace, Francis L. Stetsen, and a few others were watting for him. He spent a couple of hours with them, and then he and Mr. Benedict hired a cah and were driven to the foot of East Twenty-sixth street, where Mr. Benedict's yeach, the Oneids, lay. She had already got up her anchor and was drifting up with the steamed off for Greenwieb.

Mr. Stevenson lunched with Richard Watson of Illing one and hon. E. J. McDermott of Louisville, Ky., were also of the party. After lunch Mr. Stevenson returned to the Hoffman House, where he spent the rest of the day in receiving caliors.

BLOCKS AT THE HARLEM BRIDGE.

A Tog and a Derrick Got Mixed Up with Each Other When the Draw Was Open. Trains on the Hudson River and Harlem railroads were blocked at both ends of the Fourth avenue bridge over the Harlem for nearly an hour last evening because of a tangle of river craft at the draw. The draw was opened about 0 o'clock. The tug S. W. Devo, with a loaded car float of the New York and Northern railroad, started north through the west passage, the east one being closed for repairs. Simultaneously the ponderous steam derrick Hustier steered southward for the west passage. The pilots of the tugs Nelson and Van Cott conceived the idea of passing the draw with the other craft. There was a wild discord of whisties.

To avoid heing cut down or crushed the Van Cott and Nelson ran into the mud. The Devo, with its big tow, and the Hustier got iammed in the passage, and the draw could not be closed. Trains began to appear on the bridge and string along for blocks at either end, for I was an hour when local passenger traffic was heaviest. Two expresses were in the strings. Passengers became impatient after lifteen minutes waiting, and began getting out and asking each other questions.

Meanwhile the Hustier and the Devo were tugging and snorting in a vain effort to get fee. The tug Dorothy came to their help and pulled them apart a few minutes before 7 clock, and the draw swung to and two processions of trains, filled with relieved passengers, crossed the bridge.

Arrested for Shooting His Aunt. William Brown, 20 years old and colored. was arrested in Newark last night and hold without bail to await the result of a gunshot wound which he inflicted upon his aunt, Susan Brown, at her home, 99 Pacific street, on July 4. Battery B Ordered to March Upon Capt. Bouchard's Stronghold.

QUEBEC, July 22.-There has been a change of programme in the arrangements for selzing Capt. Bouchard and his gang of smugglers at Isle Coudres. The Government cruisers Constance, Acadia, and Le Canadienne are so busily engaged in chasing other smuggling craft near the mouth of the St. Lawrence River that it has been decided to send the regular troops from here into service. Early this morning sixty men from Battery B. under command of Major Wilson, well armed and provided with provisions for two weeks, emparked in the tug McLaughlin, their destination being Bouchard's retreat at Isle Coudres.
All smugglers found there will be selzed, the island will be thoroughly searched, and the rendezvous broken up. The customs officers who were driven off Isle Coudres yesterday by who were driven off Isle Coudres yesterday by Rouchard have reached Quebec. They claim that they were badly used, and say that their badges of office and batons inspired the smugglers with no awe whatever.

Pouchard's smuggled cargo had been plentifully distributed, and the populace were so full of whiskey and loyalty to the contrabandist that they dared aimost everything in his defence. They not only defied the officers and prevented them from searching for the cache, but drove them out of the settlement with riotous demonstrations.

A serious state of affairs is reported as existing along the Gaspo coast near the mouth of the St. Lawrence. A large cargo from St. Pierre has also been landed there in an almost impregnable noint among the cliffs. The cruisers Constance and Alert are trying to effect a seizure, but without success. Capt. Farler's detachment of men, with the fifteen-pounders, will probably make an attack on the smugglers.

The snuggler which was reported off the Gaspe coast last night is being chased by the cruiser Le Canadienne, and when last seen was heading directly north and east to the Labrador coast, where she will be able to lead the cruiser a merry chase among the small islands in that locality.

The detachment of Battery B reached Isle Coulres at Do'clock this morning. The telegraph operator at Baje St. Paul states that there is a cloud of smoke rising from the island; but as he has heard no firing it is presumed that the smoke is occasioned from some other cause than from the firearms of the smugglers or of the soldiers.

The whiskey is brought in large quantities from St. Pierre-Miquelon and landed on the various islands, principally the Mingan group on the Labrador coast, the north side of Anticosti. St. Nicolas, Bic, and Green islands in the St. Lawrence.

The favorite ground for the smugglers is Isle au Coudre, or Hazel Island, a small island in the St. Lawrence, below Quebec, and a few miles from St. Paul's Bay, on the mainland.

Here the smugglers have landed large quantities of whiskey, which they dispose of at a handsome profit, as they can afford to sell it at a much lower rate than the regular dealers.

The leader of, the smugglers. Theodore Bouchard, is a French Canadian, who is considered one of the most daring men on the St. Lawrence. He has had many narrow escapes, but has so far avoided detection.

THE HONDURAS REPOLUTION.

Insurgents Making Headway and the Gov erament Losing Strength.

New ORLEANS, July 22.- The steamships City of Dallas and S. Oteri arrived here last night from Honduranean ports. When the latter vessel left Ceiba on Monday last, news was re ceived that the insurgents had taken Olanchito without fighting or bloodshed. Gen. Mirls and his forces were at Sanaguera when they received orders from Bonilla, who has been leclared Provisional President, to join him on the outskirts of Clanchito. The order was obeyed, and Bonilla took charge of the army. The town was quietly surrounded, and sur-

Brubacker, the South Dakota sharpshooter, was detailed by Milla to command the scouts who are scouting from Jano to Tegucigaina. It was reported that he was killed, together with two of his command, several miles west with two of his command, several miles west of Jano. The revolutionists propose to march straight to Tegucigalpa, taking the towns en route. If the capture of Tegucigalpa succeeds, the revolution will be at an end. Yan Nitalicis Laines has joined the revolutionists with 200 armed volunteers. He captured Danil with these forces on July 12, and marched thence on Tuscaran. Capt. Manuel Barahona also joined the revolutionists, and assaulted and captured Fort Moho, twelve miles west of and captured Fort Moho, twelve miles west of Puerto Cortez, which is in the hands of the Government authorities. A number of other desorters from the Government were reported. The two armies were supposed to be facing each other near Yero, with expectations of a

The City of Dalias reports that while that vessel was lying off Puerto Cortex the Captain was approached by representatives of the Honduranean Government, who wanted to hire the vessel by the month to transport troops and arms. The offer was declined, Subsequently the Government succeeded in employing the American steamship Pizzatti to perform the transportation services. The Pizzatti had a large number of Government troops and a large amount of Government ammunition aboard, with which it was intended to attack Ceiba.

MURDERED LIKE A PIRATE.

Arrest of a Greek in Bridgeport Who

Boarded a Vessel and Killed the Captain, BRIDGEPORT, July 22.-Lagonedres Vourgaires. a Greek who has been wanted by the New Haven authorities for assault, was arrested in this city this morning by Detective Fuller of New York, assisted by Detective Brown of Milford, and Chief Rylands and policeman Ward of this city. Detective Fuller came to this city this morning with an interpreter, who identified the boats on which the fugitive was supposed to be hidden. Two boats were named and the party rowed out to the anchorage. They climbed on board, and Vourgaires was among the four men on the vessel. He was brought to the station house, and after the necessary papers had been served, was taken to New Haven. Vourgaires is a murderor, a pirate, and a desperado. and murder its crew. On March 4 of that year Yourgaires gathered together at Constantinople several criminals. They boarded the vassel, but the crew had gone ashore and there was no one aboard but the Captain, who was murdered. It was also discovered that 2,000 Napoleons, equal to $8,000 in United States coin, had been secured by Yourgaires and his gang. Yourgaires went to Asia, but his companions were arrested and executed.

After his arrival in this city he gave his secret and was betrayed.

Dametrius N. Bolassi, Consul-General of

Demetrius N. Botassi. Consul-General of Greece in this city, was seen in regard to Vourgaires's arrest. He had no knowledge of the case, and did not believe that the Greek Government was doing anything about the matter. There is no extradition treaty between the United States and Greece, and never in Mr. Botassi's experience has his Government demanded from this country the return of a criminal or escaped convict.

MIDDLETOWN, July 22.-The Ontario and Western milk train, going south, last night, struck a wagon containing three men at the Warren avenue crossing. Arthur McLaren, a stone cutter, a native of Canada, was killed. Filmer Mack, a printer, whose home is at Orange, N.J., was seriously injured, and John Perry was also injured. The flagman saw their danger and tried to make them wait, but could not. He said that McLaren, who was driving, was intoxicated.

An Express Clerk Accused of Theft. Harris H. Kutner, a clerk employed in the West Forty-eighth street office of the Adams Express Company, was taken to the Jefferson Market Police Court resterday on the charge of stealing a $300 gold watch that had been sent by express through his office. Kutner's pay was $60 a month. He has a wife and two children, and has been playing the races. It is alieged that he has robbed other express packages. He was held in $1,000 ball for examination.

HE'S A MESSENGER OF PEACE

WARNER MILLER HAS BEEN TALK ING WITH PRESIDENT HARRISON.

There Will Be No Bargain Between the Candidate and the Naw York I.-nders, But There Will Be a Comfortable Understanding From This Time On.

The Hon. Warner Miller returned from Washington vesterday and was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night. The Whitelaw Reid returned from Washington in noon.

The Hon. Thomas Henry Carter, the new Chairman of the Republican National Committee, returned from Washington in the evening and had a long talk with the Hon Charles W. Hackett, Chairman of the Republican State Campaign Committee. The Hon. Lewis E. McComas of Maryland, the new Secretary of the National Committee, came later. Mr. Carter and Mr. McComas will sign to-day the lease of 518 Fifth avenue, the new headquarters of the National Committee.

Ex-Senator Miller while in Washington had long talk with the President. It became apparent to him that neither Dr. Depew nor senator Hiscock had fully enlightened the President about the situation in New York State. Mr. Miller told the President the truth. Mr. Hiscock, Naval Officer Willis, and Secretary Tracy had impressed the President with tary Tracy had impressed the President with the idea that all was harmony in the Empire State. Mr. Miller, in his diplomatic way, informed the President that there were many unpleasantnesses, most of them growing out of the personal policy of Secretary Tracy. Secretary Foster of the Treasury Department, and Secretary Elkins.

The President, it is reported, was very much pleased to get at the true situation. He had nothing unkind to say of his Cabinet officers, and there was nothing unpleasant in his comments about the Republicans of New York State who opposed his renomination at Minneapolis.

ments about the Republicans of New York State who opposed his renomination at Minno-apolis.

The President was not inclined to take much stock in the reports of the alliance between ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt and Mr. Miller stock in the reports of the alliance between ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt and Mr. Miller he had been told that it was of a flimsy character. But Mr. Miller told him that, while there were certain members of the Union League Club who had not altogether agreed with him, he. Miller, was, nevertheless, firm in his allegiance to Mr. Platt. Mr. Miller informed the President that there was nothing personal in the opposition to him at Minneapolis. Mr. Miller considered that he had a right to differ with John C. New and other Federal officeholders who represented the President's campaign, and the President is gradually becoming accustomed to this idea.

There will be no bargain and no arrangement between the President and Mr. Miller and Mr. Platt, but there will he a perfect and a more comfortable understanding between the the immediate of the more than the time has come for pence. They are averse to any further comment on the situation.

There are a number of Republicans in Washington just now trying to aid in a happy solution of any differences. Collector Hendricks went to Syracuss yesterday afternoon. He was somewhat disturbed over the announcement in The Sun that Col. George L. Crouse had decided to pull out of the race for Congressman against James J. Belden. The Collector wants Mr. Crouse to remain in the race.

MR, ELKINS WILL NOT RUN.

He Discusses the Reasons Against the Suggestion for Running for Governor. PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 22.-The Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee received the following letter to-day from Secretary Elkins, giving his reasons for de-clining to run for Governor of West Virginia: "WASHINGTON, July 20.

"DEAR SIR: My name has been frequently nentioned in the public press in connection with the Republican nomination for Governor at the approaching Convention, and, having received a number of letters from friends broughout the State on the subject, I deem it just to the party, fair to my friends and all concerned to say to you, and through you to the Republicans of the State, that I will not be a candidate for the nomination. Among the reasons that have moved me to this conclusion I desire to mention that the Democratic party in the State has raised the question of my eligibility, on the grounds of residence. While I am confident that there is no basis upon which to rest this issue, and I know full well that I have been a resident of the State under the Constitution long enough to be Governor if elected, I do not think it prudent to put in peril the victory which seems now so well assured to the Republican party by allowing the opposition to put up an issue, which is and all concerned to say to you, and not think it prudent to put in perii the victory which seems now so well assured to the Republican party by allowing the opposition to put up an issue, which in certain events it may have the sole power to decide. The experience had in the case of our distinguished fellow citizen and gallantleader. Judge Goff, is too recent in the history of State polities to permit the Republican party to enter upon any course wherein there may be a chance of its again being deprived of the fruit of victory.

"I fear also, as the campaign progresses, the alleged ineligibility on the part of the opposition might create doubts in the minds of some, and to some extent weaken the Republican ticket. For my part I want to leave no room for doubt in the approaching contest. It is widely known that for more than twelve years I have been identified with the State in a business way, and that I have done all I could to advance its material interests, and during this time I have not only claimed citizenship of the State, but have never voted elsewhere.

"Then, again, I have more readily reached the conclusion just stated, and with entire satisfaction, because the Republican party holds within its ranks many able men under whose leadership the State can be carried, and as to whose residence no question can be used and no pretext brought forward for opposing the exercise of the duties of the office of Governor after the election of the candidate that may be nominated. I feel flattered by the good words and good expressions that have come to me from all parts of the State, and am not only grateful but truly thankful for the same and for the manifestation of confidence on the part of my friends. Yours, truly, &c.

"Hon. William M. O. Dawson, Chairman State Central Committee."

OFER TWO THOUSAND DEAD.

The Terrible Devastation Wrought by the Eruption of Sangir.

HAGUE. July 22.-Official confirmation has been received here from Batavia of the reported volcanic eruptions on the island of Sangir in the Celebes Sea, between Celebes and Min-

The cruption came from a volcano known as Gunona Awn. It took place just after nightfall. The inhabitants of the northwestern part of the island had felt occasional earthquakes throughout the day, and during the preceding night steam and fire were seen issuing from the voicano.

About two hours after sundown the whole island was shaken so violently that huts and houses vollapsed, and great fissures appeared in the ground. Several small sailing vessels from other islands were anchored off the coast. Their crows hastily weighed anchor, but before they could get out to sea the sruption came. Great stones and showers of ashes filled the air, three great tidal waves ebbed and flowed along the shore, and in the darkness all the beats went ashore.

Just before the storm of ashes and stones, several Dutch traders had seen the volcano belch up a great mass of flame and started to give the alarm, but before they got half a mile the blackness began to close around them.

They seized a rowboat and pulled out to sea, whence they watched the cruption, and where they drifted about until picked up by a Dutch vessel which took them to Batavia.

The loss of life on the southwestern ond was at least 2,000 and probably 2,500. On other parts of the island the total number of deaths, it is reported, will not excess! two or three hundred. The volcano is still in eruption. part of the island had felt occasional earth

M'CORMICK KNOCKS MILLS DOWN Without Altering That Broker's Opinion

Lower Broadway was turned upside down yesterday afternoon when a great throng con-gregated at the entrance to Piper's restauant, 57 Broadway. Inside the restaurant a commotion was going on. There were veils and hoots and swear words, and presently James McCormick, a member of the Consolidated Exchange, better known as a breeder of racers, came out. He was followed by Samuel M. Mills, who at one time was one of Mr. Gould's brokers and intimately associated with some of the greatest operators in Wall street. Addison Cammack, for instance, was one of his best friends. For a number of years one of his best friends. For a number of years he has been on the fringe of Wail street, and has not been as successful as in former years. Mills was following McCormick, calling him a liar and swearing like a trooper. McCormick shook his fist at Mills, and got away as soon as possible. It was learned in the restaurant that the two men had had a serious quarrel. Just after 2 o'clock, while Mr. McCormick was at lunch, in walked Sam Mills, and going up to McCormick stable he said: "Why don't you speak to me?"

"I haven't spoken to you in ten years." replied McCormick, and i don't want to now."

"I want to know why," insisted Mills.

"Because you and your gang." replied McCormick, "cheated me out of $80,000 in O. T."

"You are a liar!" replied Mills.

McCormick, "umped from his chair and hit Mills full in the face. Mills fell on the floor and rolled over. Piper and ail his waiters got around the fighters. Mills picked himself up and said to McCormick:
"I say again tint you are a liar. You are a liar, sir."

McCormick went for him again, but this time

"I say again tint you are a liar. You are a liar, air."
McCormick went for him again, but this time he was held back by the waiters. At the same time a dezen waiters held on to Mills. Mr. McCormick was invited to leave the place. As he left, and as he walked up the steps, Mills followed him calling. "You're a liar, sir. You're a blanked liar. You're a blanked liar." And the fracas was ended.

ALICE HENNING RETURNS.

Her Abductor Took Her to Muspeth and Afterward Sent Her Home,

Alice Henning, 10 years old, was abducted on Thursday evening from in front of her parents' home, 290 Broadway, Williamsburgh, by a well-dressed man for whom the police are making an active search. She was returning from an errand when the stranger gave her two cents and asked her to go with him. He took her to 284 Broadway, where he at first decided to rent an unoccupied flat from the janitor. He went away after telling the janitor that he would call again. Alice went with him, and in the street they passed Alice's brother, who was too much interested in his play to watch where the man was going with his sister. Late on Thursday night the girl returned home alone. She was in a dazed condition and talked incoherently. The police made unsuccessful efforts to obtain from her an intelligent account of where she had been. Not until yesterday morning did they succeed. Alice then said that after coming out of 284 Broadway the stranger rode with her on several cars and inally alighted in Maspeth. He took her down to Newtown Creek, where both sat on the grass. She got afraid of him and screamed. He then became angry and struck her in the face. He put her on a car again and told the conductor to take her to Broadway. After a great deal of trouble she found her home.

She described the man as between 20 and 30 years old, five feet six inches tall, and dressed in a light suit. He is believed to be a man who has acted in a disorderly manner among school children in Greenpoint for a long time. went with him, and in the street they passed

BARRIETT THREATENS HIS NEPHEW.

Mrs. Barriett Seizes the Revolver and in Meld for Carrying Concealed Weapons. Samuel Barriett came to New York from lexas recently with a big revolver, a pretty wife, and a nephew, Exavia Bernos, who is 18 years old. Barriett began to manufacture electrical apparatus at 161 Washington street and lived with his family over the shop. Then he became jealous of Bernos and turned him out of the house. Bernos circulated unpleasant stories about Mrs. Barriett, and her husband heard of them. Mrs. Barriett assured him that there was no truth in the stories and Barriett arranged a meeting between Bernos and his wife at Seventeenth atreet and Seventh avenue on Thursday night. Barriett with his big revolver accompanied his wife to hear her deny Bernos's stories when she was brought face to face with him. Bernos met them and declined to repeat the stories that he had circulated about Mrs. Barriett. Barriett was convinced that there was no foundation for convinced that there was no foundation for them and he drew his big revolver, it is alleged, to shoot Bernos. Mrs. Barriett pulled the revolver out of his hand and concealed it in her dress just as Policeman Ressicar arrived. Kessier arrested the whole party.

In the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday, Mrs. Barriett was put under $100 bail for carrying a concealed weapon. Her husband was discharged, and Bernos was fined $5. tLater Mrs. Barriett was paroled for examination this morning.

RUN DOWN BY AN ELECTRIC CAR.

A Newark Wheelman Has a Narrow Escape from Beath While Riding on the Street. Henry Pittenger of 38 Columbia street, Newark, was riding a bieyele down the hill on Springfield avenue, opposite the Court House. resterday morning, with his wheel between the rails of the electric road. One of the big yellow arks used on this line was coming rapidly down hill behind him. Some witnesses say that the motorman rang his gong and thers say that he did not. When Pittenger others say that he did not. When Pittenger became aware that there was a car behind him, however, he was in a bad fix. He tried to turn to the left and found a heavy truck in the way. Before he could turn to the right the car was upon him, and he was crushed to the pavement upon his broken wheel. Wheel and rider were pushed several yards before the brakes held the car on the steep slope. Pittenger was then dragged from under the gaurd of the car and found to be uninjured beyond a slight bruise and some scratches. His bicycle was wrecked, and, after taking it of the repair shop, he called upon the officers of the rallroad company and threatened suit if a satisfactory settlement was not made.

Miss Emma Boylls Drowned.

A merry crowd of young poople from Amityville and vicinity went bathing in the Great outh Bay, off Hemlock Beach, yesterday afternoon. Among the party was Miss Emma Baylis of Jamaica, who was visiting friends in Amityville. She was about 18 years old, and Amityville. She was about 18 years old, and always seemed at home in the water. In a spirit of fun she left her companions and ventured out far beyond her depth. The mirth of her companions was suddenly furned to horror when they saw her throw up her arms as if imploring help, and then sink. Every effort was made to rescue her, but in vain. She did not come to the surface again, and was probably carried away by the undercurrent. It is thought she was taken with cramps.

MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED PISTOL SHOIS FIRED ON BOTH SIDES.

Three Circus Men, a Constable, and , Deputy Sheriff Wounded-The Fight Was Over the Seizure of the Circus Boat on un Attachment for Damages Caused by a Collision with Another Boaton the Canal.

Oswego, July 22.-Downie & Gallagher's Wild West show and circus visited the village f Phoenix yesterday, and as a result of that visit William Harrison, an attaché, lies in a Syracuse hospitai riddled with bullets and a gaping wound in his abdomen, which physicians say will cause his death: Constable Me-Gann of Phornix has a broken wrist, and Deputy Sheriff Vickery has a flesh wound on his left side, made by a pistol ball, while at least three other circus men have bullet holes in

The circus left New York a month ago. It travels in canal boats. On the way to Phoenix on Wednesday night there was a cellision be-tween the canal heat Billy Lake of Buffalo and one of the circus boats. The former boat was damaged to the extent of $30. Downie & Gallagher declined to settle, and the Captain of the Billy Lake got out attachment papers and placed them in the hands of the officers. The latter informed the proprietors what was being done, but they still declined to settle and warned any one against interfering with their property.

After the evening performance they returned to the boats only to find them in possession of the officers. Proprietor Downie, who was prosent, called upon the circus men to throw them into the canal. Deputy Sheriff Vickery and Constable Kinslow were in charge of one boat and Constable McGann in charge of the other. It was to the latter that Downie had been talking, and at his command the circus men rushed upon McGann. The constable was armed and attempted to draw his revolver, but his wrist was broken and he was knocked into the canal by a blow from a windlass bur.

his wrist was broken and he was knocked into the canal by a blow from a windlass bar. While struggling in the water the circus men began shooting at him with revolvers and throwing stones at him. After floundering in the water he succeeded in getting out his pistol, and then began shooting at the circus men. While this was going on. Deputy Sheriff Vickerv and Constable Kinslow were having a lively time returning the fire that had been opened upon them by the circus men. The noise of the firing and news of the fight spread quickly through the village, and soon there was a large crowd of excited villagers to the rescue of the officers. It was at first reported that Constable McGann had been killed, and the villagers, with Deputy Sheriff Vickery, with a pistol in each hand, leading the way, rushed upon the circus men, and after a sharp tussle cautured a dozen of them, including Proprietor Downie, and put the others to flight.

After the battle, William Harrison, a circus employee, was found riddled with bullets and dying. He had received pistol balls in each arm and another had cut a deep furrow in his forehead. His most serious injury was a gaping wound in the abdomen, made by a bistol ball, and from the fact that his clothing was powder-burned it is believed that he was shot by a circus man. P. J. Gallagher, one of the proprietors, and about fifteen men escaped. The former was on horseback. This morning three wounded circus men were seen a few miles from the scene of the shooting, headed toward Syracuse.

At one time the greatest excitement prevalled in the village. There were frequent cries of "Lynch them," and it was all that some of the cooler heads could do to restrain the villagers from mob violence. Nearly every circus man was armed. More than a hundred shots were fired. The men in custody will all be examined to-day. Downie denies being present during the fight, and says that it was his partner, Gallagher, who incited the men to violence. The officers, however, identify Downie.

MRS. WILCOX DIVORCED. Chancellor McGill Decides Against Her In Her Husband's Sult.

Chancellor McGill decided the Wilcox divorce case yesterday by granting a decree to the husband. William M. Wilcox of Brooklyn was the husband, and Marion L. Wilcox, a soprano singer, the wife. The couple met in Stonington a few years ago. The young woman, who was a Brooklyn school teacher, was spending her vacation there. After marriage and life in a flat in New York for a time Mrs. Wilcox went away to the country for the summer. On her return, instead of going home, she went to her father's house in Brooklyn.

Wilcox was sent for to come to her father's store and the couple had an animated interview there. Mrs. Wilcox told her husband that she would never live with himagain. She that she would never live with him again. She gave him no reason for her decision. Mrs. When we have him no reason for her decision. Mrs. When went to her father's house and When went to live with his mother in Brookiyn. Subsequently Mrs. Whox went to live with her aunt in Bayonne. Afterremaining there long enough to acquire a legal residence she began a divorce suit in the Chancery Court, alieging desertion.

Aftidavits were submitted to the Chancellor that notice had been served on the defendant by publication because the complainant was unable to learn his address. A decree was about to be entered by default when Wicox accidentally heard of the proceedings and entered a protest. The case was reopened, and referred to Vice-Chancellor Pitney to take testimeny. Wilcox showed that his wife must have known his whereabouts, because he lived within a short distance of her family in Brookiyn, got shaved in the barber shop where her father got shaved and met him two or three times a week, and that he was in business in the same block with her bother and met him frequently.

It was also testified that Mrs. Wilcox's residence with her aunt in Bayonno was only nominal and for the purpose of enabling her to legin divorce proceedings. Wilcox entered a counter sut accusing his wife of desertion. Vice-Chancellor Fitney intimated that fraud had evidently been attempted by Mrs. Wilcox, and he recommended that a decree be granted to Wilcox. The decree was granted.

TOOK HIS PLUNDER TO A POLICEMAN. Said He Had Done It Again, and Asked to be Locked Up.

T. Klenke has a clothing store at 164 Sixth avenue. He was leaning against one of his counters at 6 o'clock last evening when a young man came in, glanced about cautiously. laughed, and caught up a roll of Scotch plaid and ran out and down the avenue. At Tenth street he went up to Policeman Martin of the dercer street station, who was leaning against a hydrant, and placing the roll of plaid in the officer's arms backed away grinning.
"Do you want it?" he asked. "If you do you wan have it." he spoke Klenke came up and said Arrest that fellow. He's a thief! That's my cloth."

of distress, grow pale, and seemed about to fail.

"Oh, yes," he sighed. "I'vo done it again! Take me away and lock me up, for I can't help it."

Toliceman Martin took him to the station house. To the Sergeant the prisoner said he was James Grady, a professional nurse, of 23 halisades arenue, Jersey City Heights, and that he had stolen the goods and was guilty of everything charged. "Thank God, I have no wife," he said as he was about to be seat to his cell. He was neatly dressed in a light suit, and wore a straw hat.

Klenke, who had followed the prisoner to the station, begged that he might shake hands with him before he was sent down stairs. Then he wanted to buy the prisoner a drink, but the Sergeant wouldn't let him.

Should He Have Hurried Away ! An unusually pretty young woman, in a dark blue tailor-made gown, stood on the corner of Washington and Sands streets, Brooklyn, at 71; o'clock last evening. A few minutes later a tall young man in a dark suit and a short young man in a light suit approached her in opposite directions. There were anary glances, and the next instant the two young men were in a fight. The tall man got in two good blows in rapid succession, and the short man was forced backward into the gutter. Then the pretty girl caught the tall man by his coat and dragged him in one direction while the short man hurried away in another.

2,000 Telephone Calls Rung by One Flash -A Flaspole on Fier 1 Shattered.

Last night's thunder storm was unusually well stocked with electricity. A half hour before the rain began the electrical effects were felt in the telegraph and telephone offices. The forty or fifty wires that run into THE SUN office were full of the extra fluid, and it kept breaking in upon the work of the operators until long after midnight.

At the height of the local storm it became almost impossible to operate any of the wires. The same thing was true at the Western Union main office, where thousands of lines were al most paralyzed for a time. Few connections were burned out. In the central telephone office the lightning

In the central telephone office the lightning made lots of work for the night operators. At every flash hundreds of drops fell, just as if so many subscribers had rung up central. At one big flash just at midnight fully 2,000 of the 5,110 drops went down in the Cortlandt street operating room.

At that time the worst of the storm, as it made itself manifest on these wires, was in the neighborhood of New Rochelle, and was passing down into the upper part of Brooklyn. A curious thing about this is that the electrical storm seemed to come down through White Plains and Yorkers and New Bochelle to the neighborhood of this city. Just how much damage was dene will not be known until today, for the greater number of subscribers do not use phones at night, and the night operators do not test the wires.

Several hundred excursionists who were preparing to land at Plet I from one of the iron steamboats at 10:45 o'clock were startled by a blinding flash and a shart report. As they came out from the pier into Battery place they saw a litter of pine strips and splinters at their feet.

Some of them turned, looked back at the pior, and noticed that the upper part of the centre flagpole on the pier had been shattered by lightning. They were glad that the boat

Some of them turned, looked back at the plor, and noticed that the upper part of the centre diagpole on the pier had been shattered by lightning. They were glad that the boat had been a few minutes late.

Te flag pole on the roof of Odd Fellows' Hall, 88 Forsyth street, was struck and cut completely in two. The pleces fell to the street, but no one was injured.

The lightning struck the wires that furnished the electric light to the saloon at 208 Grand street, and for a few minutes the place was in total darkness.

The lightning also struck the wire connecting with the telegraph instrument in the Eldridge street station house and shocked all who were standing near the machine.

Dr. Marklewicz of the night medical staff and Matron Cole were nearly thrown from their feet.

NEARLY WRECKED IN HER SLIP.

The Ship Bector Siegert Thrown Against Woodruff Dock by a Heavy Gust of Wind. During the squall preceding the thunder storm last night the ship Doctor Slegert, owned by Francis Henschan & Co. of Bremen. was partly wrecked in the slip at the foot of Joralemon street, Brooklyn. Two weeks ago she arrived from Port-au-Spain, and vester-she arrived from Port-au-Spain, and yester-day the work of unloading her cargo of augar was completed, and this morning ballast was to have been taken in.

Drawing only a few feet of water, she presented but slight resistance to the flerce gust of wind last night, and she suddenly careened over, almost consizing. It was only the narrowness of the slip which saved her. Her side crashed into Woodruff dock, on the south side, and her masts and rigging lay almost parallel with the dock. Some of the rigging caught in the elevator on the dock and damaged it considerably.

Capt. Bosso, the commander of the vessel, was ashore at the time, but fourteen members of the creav were aboard, and all scrambled ashore without sustaining any injury. It was feared that with the rising of the tide during the night the vessel would be badly damaged by pounding against the dock. She is between 900 and 1,000 tons burden and comparatively new.

LIGHTNING IN JERSEY.

The West End Hotel Stables, at Long Branch, Completely Destroyed. WEST END, LONG BRANCH, July 22 .- At 11:40 o'clock to-night, during a terrific storm, lightning struck the stables attached to the West End Hotel and set them on fire. The buildings were completely destroyed. All the horses were saved, and nearly all of the vehicles, although a number of private turnouts have been totally destroyed. Large amounts of hay and other feed is now being consumed although a drenching rain is falling. A number of hairbreacth escapes from lightning are reported in the several quarters of the town, but the nearest case to a close call occurred with the two operators at the Western Union Telegraph Company. Operators Sheridan and Walsh wereyat work when three distinct bolts steads the form.

Walsh were at work when three distinct boits struck the town.

One of them entered the office completely unnerving Sheridan and throwing Walsh from his seat at his desk prone upon the floor.

The fire at 12 o'clock had eaten through to a lot of shanties on Second avenue, all of which went up in smoke.

It turns out that much of this damage is due to a lack of water. It was nearly three-quarters of an hour before the Fire Department was in good shape to work.

The loss, as far as can now be estimated, will foot up about $5,000.

The stables were occupied by Ryerson & Brown.

Brown.

Newark, July 22.—During a heavy electric storm in Newark to-night lightning struck the barn of W. O. Harrison, in Crawford street, and set it on fire. The loss was $1.500, including a $250 horse, which was burned to death.

TERRIFIC STORM IN SYRACUSE. Lightning Sirikes the City Hall Tower and Demolishes a Church. Synacuse, July 22 .- A terrific thunder storm eccompanied by a heavy wind, broke upon this city at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The rain fell in torrents and deluged the streets. Trees fell in torrents and deluged the streets. Trees were blown down all over the city, and a dozen buildings more or less damaged. The lightning struck the tower of the new City Hall and tore a huge chunk of stone from the apex. Picces of slate were also torn from the roof and scattered in all directions.

The Methodist church in the Huntley tract, was nearly demolished. The roof was torn from Rubin's Hall in Grape street, and siso from a house in the same vicinity. D. McCarthy & Sons, dry goods dealers, suffered to the extent of $10,000. The lightning ripped up the tin roof of the building, making an opening for the rain, which for half an hour poured down in a perfect torrent.

The Weather.

The warm wave is confined principally to the States out west of the Mississippi, where the temperature for the past three days has teuched $85° to 100°. The wave is working slowly castward, however, and it should be warmer in this neighborhood to-day and or Sunday.

A storm of considerable energy has appeared to the north of Montana, with the radius of low pressure ex-tending 800 miles from the centre. This is causing high winds and showers over the Northwest, and as it moves east will draw the warm weather well up into the Northern States.

There was but little change in this city yesterda. The day was fair; highest official temperature, 860

Leaves Camp-The Duquerne Men Out. PITTSBURGH, July 22 .- All those who ares keenly interested in the Homestead strike are speculating to-day over the meaning of a. visit of nine men, who are supposed to be-Pinkerton detectives, to the jail here to identify Hugh O'Donnell. The hearing in the apes plication which Lawyers Brennan and Cog made before Judge Mages had just been con-cluded to-day when Mr. Cox said to several reporters that O'Donnell would like to see them in the jail. The reporters hurried over and were met by Warden McAloese, who declined to admit them. They saw through the grated door nine men sitting in the Warden's office. While the reporters were there the Warden called Deputy Soffel aside and said to him: "Allow no two of those men to go in at once. Take them in one at a time, and when they have identified their man show them out in the same manner." The men were taken inside one by one O'Donnell was called from his cell by Sofiel, dozen prisoners, whose offences range from 'pitch and toss' to manslaughter were ranged natine in the corridor, O'Donnell standing third. After the first of the nine men had passed along the line and had returned to the Warden's office Warden McAleese stopped him, and said:

" Did you see any of your people?" "I did."

" How many ?"

"Just one, the man with the straw hat on." As each man left O'Donnell's place in the line was changed, and his hat exchanged with that of some other prisoner. Each of the rioters hit the same man. Several of the nine men were intercepted on leaving the jail, and were asked if they were not members of the Pinkerton force, to which each replied evasively, but not one denied it, It was apparent that each will come to the witness stand to-merrow or the hearing to release O'Donnell on bail. Warden McAleese said that although O'Donnell's attorneys might have wished him to see the reporters, the man himself certainly did not want to say anything in print, and then is smiled in a way that made the reporter w o was interviewing him think that Lawyer Cox's message had been intended to get them to the jail at just the right time.

While this inspection of O'Donnell was going on Mrs. O'Donnell was in the Warden's office awaiting a chance to see her husband. She is quick-witted woman, and she suspected what was going on. She asked a great many questions, but none of them was answered. Lawyers Brennan and Cox began a proceeding similar to the proceeding in the McLuckie case when the court opened this morning. The lawyers for the Carnegie Company asked that the hearing be postponed for a day, and Judge Magee fixed 9:30 o'clock to-morroy morning as the time. The impression prevails that a strong effort is to be made to prevent O'Donnell's release from jall on bail to-morrow. It is believed that the identification by the Pinkerton men to-day had something to do with the case to-morrow.

O'Donnell has been one of the most offensive men to the Carnegie Company, but the company says very positively that that makes no difference so far as the prosecution in this case is concerned. 'This matter," said Secretary Lovejoy yesterday. "Is entirely out of our hands. We care no more for the prosecution of O'Donnell than we care for the prosecution of any other of the rioters."

Lawyer Brennan says that he has no doub whatever but that O'Donnell and Ross will be released in the morning. He said he could not imagine of what use the identification by the Pinkerton men was. "O'Donnell has never denied." he said, "that he was on the field the day of the battle. There is plenty of evidence to prove that he did not have a gun, and that he did counsel the men to peace." If O'Donnell is admitted to ball he will get a rousing reception on his return to Homestead. The strikers say the town is not under martial law, and that Provost Marshal Green or Gen. Snowden has no right to interfere with any demonstration that may be made. They say they will show that the people of Homestend are not to be trifled with. This is bluster or fight. Col. Green will not permit any demonstration. It is against the order of Gen. Snow-

TWO MORE ARRESTS. A Constable Does His Work Quietly and

Gets His Mer. PITTSBURGH, July 22.-Two more men were arrested to-day accused of the murder of Connor, the l'inkerton man, and their own companion striker, Waine, whose head was blown if with a cannon ball fired by strikers. They are Matthew Foy and Peter Allen.

Their names were among the eight for whom warrants were issued on Tuesday. Who these eight are has been carefully guarded, and there were no more surprised men in Homestead to-day than Foy and Allen. They were taken out of town before any of the other strikers know that they had been arrested. Foy is 50 years old. His son William was the first of the strikers to fall in the battle from the bullet of a Pinkerton. He is still alive, but he will die, the doctors say. The father worked in the steel mill. The boy was working in the coal regions, and happened to be home on the day of the fight. He went out to take part in it against his mother's wishes, though the woman urged her husband to go. Allen was also an employee in the steel works. He is younger than Poy. Constable Morris of Alderman McMaster's court made the arrests. He was one of the court made the arrests. He was one of the three constables who went up to arrest the first men for whom warrants were issued. There was a military escort that day. To-day he concluded to go about it quietly.

He, went to Homestead ostensibly to serve subparnas for winesses who are wanted in the hearing of O'Donnell's application for ball tomorrow. He foand out where Allen lived and went to his house. Allen was at home. Morris called him out and read the warrant to him.

"Oh. I'm not going with you," said Allen." I didn't have anything to do with that fight. I didn't have anything to do with that fight. I didn't see any shooting."

"I know you didn't." Morris assured him, but the Judge told me he wanted to see you anyway, and you had better come along. It isn't far to Pittsburgh, and you must come."

"Well." said Allen, "wait till I get my cont and hat and I'll come." He went into the house and got on his coat and hat and came out. This was about half past five o'clork.

Morris left him at the house in charge of another officer while he went around to for a house. Foy was in the room with his wounded son giving him a tonic. Morris called him out and told him he had a warrant for his arrest.

"What?" exclaimed Foy. "for me, a warrant for me! What do you mean, sir?"

"I mean," said Aloris, that you are accused of murdering T. J. Connor and August Waine, and you must come with me."

"Me!" exclaimed Foy again. "Me go with you!"

"Yes, you," said Morris, "and I've told you whe was a sir." Yes. you," said Morris. "and I've told you

"Yes, you," said Morris, "and I've told you why,"
Oh, well," said Foy, "this knocks me flat.
Why, I didn't know those fellows who were killed, and my own son came near being killed, and nere I'm being arrested for murder. Well, I suppose I'il have to go along.

Foy started out right away, with not a word to his family. He walked with the constable around to Allen's house, where the first man
